As proud parents of two young men, Terri and her husband faced something that wasn't covered in any of the parenting books they read. Their younger child was born a girl, and for fifteen years they believed they were raising a daughter. However, their precious child, who they now know as their son, is transgender.

Terri will share her family's journey through fear, uncertainty, and heartbreak...to understanding, acceptance, and joy. She and her husband supported their teenage son's transition from female to male.

No matter who you are or how you identify, this presentation will inspire and challenge you to see all people differently and embrace your role — in the workplace and the world — as an ally.
